

James D. Ivy Who Leaped From Fast Train Is Convicted

JACKSON, Tenn., May 12 (AP).—Prison doors were made to yawn yesterday afternoon for the conviction of James D. Ivy, alleged automobile thief and desperado, and C. M. Miller, charged with violating the liquor laws, when the verdicts returned by the criminal court jury was announced "guilty" under all counts of the indictment. In each case, Ivy is alleged to have stolen the automobile of J. M. Glenn and was arrested in Memphis several weeks ago. While en route to Jackson in the custody of Sheriff J. G. Perry, he made a bold leap from his car, making his way from the moving train while handcuffed. He was later arrested in the vicinity of Commerce and brought to Jackson for trial. Miller is a young white man of Jackson and was charged with storing and possessing intoxicating liquor. The court completed all cases scheduled for hearing until tomorrow morning during the afternoon session yesterday and no trials were in process today. The regular order of procedure will be taken up tomorrow morning. Indictments were returned against several parties by the grand jury yesterday afternoon, but none of the accused have been arrested, hence their names are withheld from publication. The grand jury completed its investigation until Monday, May 24, when the body will reasonably be expected to return the last week of the term. The persons convicted yesterday afternoon will be sentenced Friday morning. Judge N. R. Barthum stated today it is expected that the jail dockets and possible a part of the jail dockets will be heard at this term of the court.

NINE ASK SEVERANCE OF TIES THAT BIND

Attorney A. J. McDonald has blossomed forth again with a new batch of divorce suits, and taking a cue from him came five other attorneys, also representing clients seeking severance of marital ties. McDonald filed six suits late Tuesday, bringing his total for the year up to 142. Ernest S. Bell, Marshall & Busby, T. H. Johnson and W. L. Terry are the other lawyers who filed suits.

Mrs. M. A. Holland filed suit for divorce from D. L. Holland, alleging that he is 10 years her senior, and is just out of her. They were married about three and one-half years when they separated in 1919, she alleges. Cruel and inhuman treatment is the ground she alleges.
